Ten innings of warfare, and every one stubborn warfare, took place at the Polo Grounds yesterday when the Glants and Pirates clinched in the fourth game of the series. The Giants won, 2 to 1, and there were eight innings of aching voids between their runs. On their side the Pirates went empty handed for two innings, scored in the third and then for seven innings dealt in round, fat ciphers. When the aching voids were reckened up it was they who left the field with the big ache. The hard won victory was a counter irritant for any twinges the Giants may have felt and partial palliative for three defeats immediately preceding the one successful resistance made | Tailend to the aggressive freebooters.

It was Marquard who stripped the Pirates of their cutlasses, albeit the Rube was aided and abetted by support of class. Marquard was in tiptop form. He had to be, for the Giants too were struggling against pitching of potency. Clarke returned Hendrix to the dais to bring about the four straight desideratum.

well played on both sides.

However, Marquard outpitched Hendix a shade. He churned the ball up the lane with better aim than the Plussburger and kept the hits so distantly seattered that no two were made in an inning. The Glants twice searched Hendrik's delivery for two hits in one inning. These feats being consummated in the first and tenth periods, and by means of the brief but sufficient coordination of clouts the Glants won the game.

John Red Murray was the biggest man of the afternoon in a batting way. Both of the home team's runs were driven in by him. He struck out twice in the first and tenth periods, and by means af the brief but sufficient coordination of clouts the Glants won the game.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 8 .- By slugging promiscuously in the first two sessions of the Nap-Highlander opener to-day the Naps got away with the game, 8 to 5. Wolverton sent in his best bets, Ford and Sweeney, to put fear in the hearts of the frisky Naps, but the Naps weren't a bit afraid and Ford lacked inspiration in the early sessions. Kahler pitched winning ball most of the way, but in the fifth and last sessions took things easy. Five errors by the Highlanders figured in the Naps' run making.

Lusty wallops by Naps in the first and econd put Ford up in the air and carried along part of his teammates.
